Schedule K-1

- Reports taxpayer's share of income and other distributions, deductions, and credits from partnerships, S corporations, and some estates and trusts
- Limited Schedule K-1 income topics (and reporting forms) are in scope
 - Interest income (Form 1040, unless Schedule B is required)
 - Dividend income (Form 1040, unless Schedule B is required)
 - Qualified Dividends income (1040)
 - Net short-term capital gains and losses (Schedule D, line 5)

 - Royalty income (Schedule E) – only in scope if the source document is a Schedule K-1 or Form 1099-MISC, Box 2, Royalties, with no associated expenses

Rental Income and Expenses

- Generally, income from renting a room or home to a tenant is reportable on Form 1040, Schedule E
 - Property must have been rented at fair rental value – if not, income and expenses are reported differently, and it is out of scope
- Two methods of accounting:
 - Cash basis – most common
 - Accrual method – out of scope

Rental Income and Expenses

What are common deductible rental expenses?

- Mortgage interest
 - Split between Schedule A and Schedule E if only part of the home was rented, or if the home was rented for only part of the year
- Property taxes
 - If any part of the property tax is a special assessment for local benefits, it is added to the basis of the property, and is not deductible
- Property insurance
- Auto and travel expenses related to the production of rental income
 - Standard mileage rate
 - Actual expense method – out of scope
- Property repairs

Rental Income and Expenses

Repairs vs. Improvements – common source of confusion

- Repairs:
 - Keep the property in good operating condition
 - Costs are current year deductions
- Improvements:
 - Add to the life or material value of the property, prolong its life, or adapts it to new uses
 - Costs must be depreciated over the useful life of the improvement

Depreciation

- What are some examples of depreciable property?
 - Buildings, machinery, furniture, vehicles, improvements to rental property
- Land and land improvements are not depreciable
- Three basic factors determine amount of depreciation:
 - Basis of the property
 - Recovery period for the property
 - Depreciation method used

Special Allocations

Rental vs. Personal Use

- Personal use of a dwelling unit can limit deductibility of rental expenses
- Mortgage interest and property taxes are allocated separately on both Schedules A and E if there is personal use
- Review the Worksheet for Figuring Rental Deductions for a Dwelling Unit Used as a Home in Pub 527, Chapter 5, Personal Use of Dwelling Unit (Including Vacation Home)

Worksheet 5-1. Worksheet for Figuring Rental Deductions for a Dwelling Unit Used as a Home

Keep for Your Records

Use this worksheet only if you answer "Yes" to all of the following questions.

- Did you use the dwelling unit as a home this year? (See Dwelling Unit Used as a Home.)
- Did you rent the dwelling unit at a fair rental price 15 days or more this year?
- Is the total of your rental expenses and depreciation more than your rental income?

PART I. Rental Use Percentage

A. Total days available for rent at fair rental price	A.	_____
B. Total days available for rent (line A) but not rented	B.	_____
C. Total days of rental use. Subtract line B from line A	C.	_____
D. Total days of personal use (including days rented at less than fair rental price)	D.	_____
E. Total days of rental and personal use. Add lines C and D	E.	_____
F. Percentage of expenses allowed for rental. Divide line C by line E	F.	_____

Rental Loss

- Passive Income vs. Active Participation – Taxpayers who are not active participants may not deduct rental losses that exceed rental income.
- Two restrictions on how much a loss from passive activity can offset other sources of income:
 - At-risk rule – taxpayer can claim a loss only up to the amount for which they are personally at-risk in the activity
 - Passive activity rule – losses that exceed rental income are not deductible
- For more information, see Publication 925, Passive Activity and At-Risk Rules.

Reporting Rental Loss

- When reporting passive rental loss, Form 8582 is generally not required if the taxpayer has:
 - Only one passive loss generated from a rental activity and
 - An AGI of less than $100,000
- If in doubt, refer the taxpayer to the IRS or a professional tax preparer.
