Key Terms

Actual Expense Method: One of two methods for calculating business automobile expenses. For the actual expense method, the taxpayer determines the business portion of expenses for fuel, auto maintenance, parking fees and tolls, and auto loan interest. (The other method is the standard mileage method.) The actual expense method is out of scope for the VITA/TCE program.

Business Expenses: Business expenses are amounts that are ordinary and necessary to carry on the business.

Business Income: Business income is income received from the sale of products or services. For example, fees received by a professional person are considered business income. Rents received by a person in the real estate business are business income. Payments received in the form of property or services must be included in income at their fair market value.

Cash Method of Accounting: Accounting method that reports income when constructively received (not earned) and expenses when paid (not incurred), as opposed to the accrual method.

Depreciation: The cost of items that are expected to last more than a year should be spread over a period of years rather than deducted in the year of purchase. In-scope for Military certification only (rental property).

Earned Income: Any income received for work, such as wages or business income.

Election to expense business assets: An election is available to immediately expense qualifying business assets. Taxpayers who wish to expense business assets should be referred to a professional tax preparer.

Employee: Under common-law rules, anyone who performs services for you is your employee if you can control what will be done and how it will be done. This is so even when you give the employee freedom of action. What matters is that you have the right to control the details of how the services are performed.

Gig Economy: The gig economy – also called sharing economy or access economy – is activity where people earn income providing on-demand work, services or goods. Often, it's through a digital platform like an app or website.

Independent Contractor: People who are in an independent trade, business, or profession in which they offer their services to the general public are generally independent contractors. The general rule is that an individual is an independent contractor if the payer has the right to control or direct only the result of the work and not what will be done and how it will be done. The earnings of a person who is working as an independent contractor are subject to self-employment tax.

Inventory: The items the taxpayer buys or makes for resale to others. Taxpayers having inventory should be referred to a professional tax preparer.

Qualified Business Income deductions: Beginning in 2018, taxpayers may be able to deduct up to 20% of their qualified business income from their business. The deduction can be taken in addition to the standard deduction or itemized deductions.

Qualified Medicaid waiver payments: Payments by a state, a political subdivision of a state, or a certified Medicaid provider under a Medicaid waiver program to an individual care provider for nonmedical support services provided under a plan of care to an individual (whether related or unrelated) living in the individual care provider's home.

Regular Method: Most common method for computing self-employment tax. Under the regular method, the net self-employment income entered on Schedule SE is the sum of net self-employment earnings from the taxpayer's Schedules C and F. (Taxpayers should consult a professional tax preparer or a military legal assistance officer if they use a different method or require Schedule F.)

Ride Share Services: (See Gig Economy.)

Self-employment Income: Earned income from a trade, business, farming, or profession that is not paid by an employer. For example, seamstresses and lawn care workers who work for themselves (and not for someone else) are considered self-employed.

Sole Proprietor: (See Independent Contractor.)

Standard Mileage Method: One of two methods for calculating business automobile expenses. For the standard mileage method, the taxpayer multiplies the business miles by the mileage rate for that tax year. (The other method is the actual expense method.)

Statutory employee: If workers are independent contractors, such workers may nevertheless be treated as employees by statute (a statutory employee) for certain employment tax purposes.
